Jeanne Sternad, Ph.D.
“I think I have always been drawn to teaching. I remember playing school with my siblings when I was little, and I was often the teacher.” It’s no surprise, then, that Dr. Jeanne Sternad has spent her entire career in education—as a teacher, administrator, superintendent and now college instructor.

“I’m excited for the opportunity to contribute to Ursuline College,” she admits. “I’ve learned a lot of things in my years of public education, and I think it’s time to share my knowledge with future generations.”

Jeanne’s areas of concentration include educational research and educational administration. The teaching styles she utilizes are collaborative learning, group work, and experiential learning. “I think that everyone can learn something new in the classroom.”

Jeanne was immediately impressed with Ursuline and its caring atmosphere. She believes that Ursuline takes interest in the individual student and encourages students to continue their educations past a bachelor’s program, so they can see things from another point of view, learn to think in a variety of ways and to gain marketability.

Jeanne enjoys antiquing and visiting auctions and house sales. She also enjoys biking, reading, and hiking.

FAVORITES:
Song/music genre: Classic Rock, Jazz, Broadway Musicals (She admitted to liking many different kinds of music).
Color: Purple
Vacation Spot: Paris
Holiday: (unofficial) The day in the fall when we set the clocks back and get an extra hour.
Season: Fall
Food: Ice Cream
Book: Atlas Shrugged, Ayn Rand
TV Show: Criminal Minds
Animal: My neighbor’s Labradoodle, Tucker
Sports Team: Garfield Heights Boys Basketball Team
Historical Figure: Amelia Earhart