Ursuline nun gets leadership award

Sister Rosemary Hocevar of Ursuline College received the National Catholic Education Association’s 2011 Michael Guerra Leadership Award. Hocevar won the award based on her work as a secondary-school teacher, leader, college professor and chairwoman of the secondary department executive committee. The 1960 Ursuline graduate worked at Sacred Heart Academy and Villa Angela Academy before returning to Ursuline College. Hocevar also worked in the Diocesan Education Office as the coordinator for Catholic secondary schools. She has served on a number of boards including Ursuline’s and has won many awards. The Guerra Leadership Award is given every year at the Catholic Education Association’s convention to an educator who will have a lasting impact on Catholic secondary schools.
